

Brent Dutton, Graphic and Exhibit Designer

Brent worked for many years as a graphic and industrial designer in Montreal before moving to Vancouver. Since joining APA in 2001, Brent has worked on more than 50 interpretive planning and exhibit design projects. He is particularly interested in the potential of design to effect positive change and to catalyze people's deeper engagement with the world. Whether working on two or three-dimensional design projects, he approaches his work as a problem-solving process that uses materials, form and colour to engage, provide insight or make the complex easy to understand. Brent excels at using design to create a visual communications approach that is accessible, cohesive and informative, and, at the same time, deeply reflects the identity, essence and messaging of his client's organizations.
