Delicate Underwater Worlds Revealed

The Vancouver Aquarium is home to thousands of incredible ocean species and amazing aquatic life. The Exploration Gallery encouraged new ways of thinking about the underwater world.

APA worked with Aquarium staff to develop experiences that let visitors interact with fragile aquatic life safely. New experiences use a range of technologies to bring the invisible behaviors of marine life into plain view. Visitors view life from a fish's perspective and come face-to-face with them. Underwater cameras capture 24 hours of action in the tanks so visitors can “zoom in” on the delicate feeding filaments of a barnacle or speed up the footage to watch a sea star “run” around the tank.
