

WET Science Center at LOTT Alliance

Olympia, WA

Every Drop Counts

The LOTT Alliance is a union of four government agencies working together in Thurston County to conserve water resources through wastewater treatment. Visitors explore the Water Education and Technology (WET) Science Center to learn about water through fun, hands-on interpretive experiences.

APA worked closely with LOTT to create a comprehensive plan for the Center, tying in school curriculum and complementing facility tours. The approach—guided by scientific content and aimed at students and families—lets visitors analyze their relationship with water. Visitors determine their water use with a giant calculator, give their house an H₂O home makeover and investigate why water conservation is so important.
