Bold, Local and Relevant Science

The Discovery Centre has long been an agent of change in the Maritimes by engaging visitors with science, technology, engineering, art and math. The Centre's new home in a historic power station on Halifax's waterfront, continues to spark curiosity.

APA worked with the Centre's staff, ensuring that new exhibits address issues that are relevant to Nova Scotians while leaving space for events and programming. In the atrium, visitors are introduced to the science center's big ideas through mesmerizing multimedia. With engaging exhibits, visitors explore local perspectives through the science of water, energy, transportation, health and innovation.
